Plan Mileage Survey For San Pedro Hiway

Meeting in the San Francisco city hall last week, members of Highway District No. 9 planned to make a survey of mileage between San Francisco and Santa Cruz on the new coast road and compare it with that of the old winding road over San Pedro mountain.

The directors intend to make this survey with the intention of showing motorists the difference between the two roads, and the improvement to be gained by the San Pedro road.

Engineers on the San Pedro road told the directors that work on the road was approximately 75 per cent complete.

McGrath Denies Aim To Run For Governor

Congressman John J. McGrath of San Mateo said this week in Washington, according to United Press dispatches, that he would seek the California governorship next year only if drafted by the Democratic party. His statement came in answer to reports circulated recently that he definitely was a candidate for governor and would not campaign again for congress.

Representative McGrath answered this rumor with the statement that he "very definitely" was a candidate for re-election to congress.

New 186-Mile Highway Links San Simeon With Carmel

Following an old mule route through scenic and hitherto almost inaccessible territory along the California coast, the $6,000,000 San Simeon-Carmel highway was recently dedicated with gala ceremonies. Pictured above is one of the 32 bridges on the 186-mile highway. A concrete span crossing Bixby Creek is the longest of its kind in the world.

VACATION CAMPS PLANNED BY WPA FOR THE SUMMER

Underprivileged Children To Get Vacation In Five
Summer Camps

"I've never seen a purple cow—I never hope to see one."

Well, we've never seen a purple cow, either, but believe it or not there are children in California, right here in this agricultural state, who've never seen any kind of a cow, not even a harmless benign bovine Jersey chewing her cud.

That amazing fact was revealed in a discussion of 5 vacation camps for underprivileged children planned for the summer by the Works Progress Administration Division of Recreation.

Last year Works Progress Administration-assisted camp programs were largely experimental. Two in the state were operated, with an attendance of 800. This year, the merit of vacation camps having been

Spanish Theme To Permeate Displays, Decorations This Year

Plans for the 1937 San Mateo Products and Floral Fiesta at Bay Meadows were officially announced this week by the general manager of the fete.

Following weeks of careful planning by the Fiesta Board of Commissioners the details for the fiesta have been announced. This $50,000 event is an annual affair. Cash premiums valued at $20,000 and trophies are to be awarded.

SPANISH THEME

"The fiesta this year has been planned to carry out an entirely Spanish theme through which we hope to offer to the thousands of patrons who will attend not only marvelous industrial, agricultural and floral displays but also the historical background of our county," declared the management.

It was revealed that plans call for a pageant of Spanish setting featuring many colorful costumes and hundreds of performers.

The pageant this year will tell the story of San Mateo County and its early day history.

DECORATIONS

Decorative features will be entirely different from last year.

Vagabond Sketches

by
DON AMES

There is nothing to take back concerning the Louis-Braddock fight I mentioned last week.

But one thing that made me indignant was the way Henry McLemore, United Press writer, handled his "before and after" columns. He maintained that, through reading the bumps on his own head, Jimmy Braddock would be given the decision at the end of fifteen rounds. After Louis had been crowned heavyweight champion of the world, McLemore painted a word picture of the young Negro as a butcher and a would be murderer.

After all, sports writers should remember that professional boxing is a sport although it may seem a little shady and sordid at times. I have always admired McLemore, that is, up to the time I read his "after" column.

Runners up were Alice Vanzant and Lillian Lindy.

Coronation of the queen will take place at an impressive ceremony, Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m. Little Nancy Rouke will be crown bearer and the ladies auxiliary of the fire department will serve as court of honor for the royal lady.

In appreciation for the promised support of the Brisbane Fire Department in increasing the circulation of the Brisbane Sun, Business Manager Albert H. Boynton awarded Miss Blanchard a free vacation trip to Rio Nido. She will accompany other young ladies of the vicinity who are

Coincidence Plays Strange Role

Members of the Brisbane Social Club will hold their installation of officers, Wednesday evening of next week, at the club house. VALLEY TO SEE GIGANTIC SHOW AT RACE TRACK

Ed Schwerin, McLaren Park
Ranch, Is Sponsoring
Gala Event

One of the largest fireworks displays in the bay area will be held at the Town and Country Club track just off Geneva avenue, Monday evening, July 5, starting at 8:30 p. m.

The gala display is being sponsored by Ed Schwerin, popular resident of the valley and owner of the McLaren Park Ranch, for the enjoyment of the citizens of the entire bay area. The colorful night show will be visible from any part of Visitation Valley.

It is peculiarly fitting that the show should be staged almost within the shadows of the great Livestock Exposition building now under construction in the valley. Shooting stars and bursting bombs of the display will illuminate the great steel girders of the stock arena, the biggest building of its kind in the world.

Grand Coulee Dam Rises as Work Continues Night and Day

Dean-Frick Battle Has Made Cardinals More Serious Outfit

NO DOUBT the real facts in the case are merely that Dizzy Dean has recently happened to have some of his best days while ill-luck has been continuing its overdue catching up with Carl Hubbell.

Maybe that isn't the whole explanation, though. Certainly a change has come over the Cards' dugout since the St. Louis representatives were training in Florida and since the season opened.

During the training period Frankie Frisch's young men were more concerned with the lighter aspects of life than with the business of baseball. Having read in the newspapers that they were due to win a pennant they let it go at that and devoted their more diligent attention to guitar concerts on street corners. Once the National league season had started there was no greater concern over frequent defeats. Somehow the athletes seemed to believe that such rebuffs could not happen to them in real life and that they would wake up almost any morning to find they merely had been victims of bad dreams.

Captain Leo Durocher, having played with a Yankee team or two that similarly misplaced its confidence over a portion of the season, was one of the few who had a correct line on the situation.

"Yeah, we've got a good team but it's a young one," he explained when the Cards were moving blithely and none too adeptly through their early season exercises. "A team like that can win a pennant and it also can finish away down with the Dodgers. It's all how the breaks fall or, rather, how things click. Something's got to wake us up and start us going. What? How do I know? How does any one know? Those things just happen."

"Remember that time in Cleveland when Mike Gazella, just a substitute, practically browbeat a Yankee team into snapping out of it and grabbing the flag? Nobody told him to do it. He just happened to touch off the spark when too many great players were feeling low or acting careless. Something similar can happen to us. Then watch."

Viewing the Cards in the dugout before a game recently, I remembered that conversation. The collection of babbling, care-free young men who were more concerned with carrying on feuds among themselves than with doing serious damage to the opposition a month ago had changed. The Cards were not the hard-bitten Gas House Gangsters of two or three seasons ago but neither were they joy-riding youths.

More than anything they were like the Giants who sat in the dugout across from them. Serious athletes, that is. Young men not given to too much carryings on but intent upon giving the fans who crowded the stands a fair break for the attention lavished upon them.

Even Dean, ordinarily a gentleman who could give a ten-mile start to Tennyson's famed brook in any babbling contest, was as silent as Hubbell across the way. Only once in the 30 minutes immediately preceding game time was there anything like the celebrated Dean wit and humor. Then some stranger intruded to ask for the classic Dean signature on a baseball.

"Shucks," was the reply then. "Get away, man. The only way I'll sign anything with that guy's name on it is with a bat."

Since the name of Ford Frick, president of the National league and the recent spanker of Mr. Dean, is pretty written on all the league baseballs before they leave the factory, there seemed no doubt about who "that guy" was. Also the chorused amens which followed this fervent announcement seem now to indicate what has converted the Cards into a team.

Definitely, the St. Louis representatives continue to chafe under the reprimand of the league president who was only doing his duty. Frick revealed to them that they were not quite the objects of popular adoration that some of them had conceived themselves to be. Since the truth hurts more than anything else the young men were bound to get even.

Dean pitched as he can pitch when he remembers he is no longer a barefooted kid in an Arkansas cotton patch. The Cards played the ball of which they are capable.

NOT IN THE BOX SCORE:

BILL STEWART, baseball umpire and former chief of referees in the National Hockey league, plans to dress the Chicago Black Hawks in Balloon silk pants and gaudy jerseys when he starts managing them next season. Says it will give them more crowd appeal. Chan Parmelee, who gave promise of becoming as good a pitcher as his big brother who stars for the Cubs, has decided to quit baseball rather than continue on a Dodgers' farm.

One of the most eminent metropolitan bookmakers, inside and outside the tracks, is getting away with a new gag. Each day one of the bookie's representatives noseys around the jockeys' room and secretary's office seeking red hot information. Jersey golfers are saying that Foster Fargo, powerful seventeen-year-old who enters Yale next fall, will be one of the links' top notchers within a couple of seasons. The Plainfield youngster, who tied with Craig Wood for the medal in the 1936 Jersey open and who has been champion at Hotchkiss for the past three years, is long off the tees and warm on the greens.

Owners of New York's three major league baseball clubs are tiffing with one another again because of their agreement to ban radio broadcasts from the parks. It seems that the bank which handles everything so nicely for the Dodgers and pays two managers to keep them in the second division wants to break the agreement for 25 G's. The U. S. G. A., which has managed to ball up most of its tournaments in recent years, has done so representative to the P. G. A. tourney at the Pittsburgh Field club. The pros and John McGraw, president of the club, did such a courteous and efficient job that even the most hardened golf writers now have new faith in human nature.

Those touts who expected to reap a harvest at the new du Pont race-track near Wilmington are scared of only one thing—the Delaware lynching laws. John Ogden, Baltimore Orioles, business manager, blames International league happenings on the rainy spring weather. Says hard-hit balls had no chance to bounce on the soggy infields, and so pitchers with very little stuff have been getting by against power teams.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Now Follow the Horses

Now that he has retired from prizefighting Tony Canzoneri and the pretty Mrs. Tony get their thrills out of watching horse races.

Al Schacht, the baseball comedian who has just signed a handsome three-year movie contract, gets $250 each time he puts on his act in a big league park. The use of that green aniline grass dye that attracted so much attention at the Army-Navy game last fall has spread to the hunts field where it is used to give a permanent appearance to the temporary jumps.

Paul Mellon, incidentally, has joined that very select group of life members in the United Huns.

Pug Peace, 190-pound blocking back who starred for the frosh team last fall, is being named as a sure-fire star on the Pitt varsity, which should be better than ever in October. Although boxers are supposed to appear entirely in the nude when they weigh in for fights, the ever modest Tony Galento always wears his wrist watch.

Flamingo Joe Widener, the Belmont owner who always runs off to Europe before the season's big race at his track, has patched up his feud with the United Huns.

Ky Laffoon is the only big-time golfer who chews tobacco during a tournament. Whenever he gets in a tough spot he just spurs out a thin geyser of juice and steps up and belts the ball. Mrs. J. G. Clark named her clever Irish Battle jumper Wibm because of her friendly rivalry with Mrs. Marion Gibson, M. F. H. of the Golden Bridge Hounds. The name means "Will I beat Marion" and the bookmakers don't like it. Gabe Genovise, manager of the former middleweight champion, Babe Risko, paid transportation charges on Hans Haverlick, the Austrian heavyweight who is being handled by the Woodman and Lawrence combination.

Battling Nelson, who held the lightweight championship from 1908 to 1910, celebrated his 55th birthday recently. Amateur golfers in Philadelphia play annually for a trophy donated by Howard Ehmke, former Athletic pitcher who struck out 13 Cubs in the 1929 world's series opener at Wrigley field. Sad Sam Gibson, who won his first ten games for the San Francisco Seals this spring, is thirty-nine years old. Frank Kanaly, Yale track coach, devised a set of blinkers, similar to those used on horses, to break Easton Burlingame, one of his sprinters, from looking back in a race. Hans Wagner, the Pirates' coach, has stopped riding subways to the Polo Grounds since a Johnny Quick Fingers picked his pocket for $60 on the Pirates' first trip to New York this year. Jimmy Isminger, dean of the Philadelphia baseball writers, has discovered what's wrong with the Athletics. Their first western trip didn't last long enough.

When the Python Has the Toothache

When the python of the Rotterdam, Holland, Zoological Garden had a toothache recently, seven men took the place of a dentist's chair, as shown, while the white-coated dentist did his work.

PETER AND WINSOME BLUEBIRD GOSSIP

TO GOSSIP is to talk about other people and what they are doing or what they have done or what they are going to do. Peter Rabbit and Winsome Bluebird were gossiping in the dear Old Brier Patch. Winsome sat in a little cherry tree and right under him sat Peter. Winsome had just arrived from way down South to spread the glad news that Mistress Spring was on her way and would soon reach the Green Meadows, the Green Forest, and the Smiling Pool. You see Winsome is the herald of Mistress Spring and keeps just a little way ahead of her. When the little meadow and forest people first see his beautiful blue coat, or hear his soft, sweet whistle, they know that Mistress Spring is surely on the way and not very far behind, and then for there is nothing that he enjoys more than to watch Mistah Buzzard sail around and around, way, way up in the blue, blue sky. He is rather fond of Ol' Mistah Buzzard, is Peter Rabbit, for big as he is, Mistah Buzzard never offers to hurt any of the very little people, not even little Danny Meadow Mouse. "Why isn't he starting right away?" he asked.

"Well, you see," replied Winsome, "Mistah Buzzard doesn't like the cold."

"But it isn't cold now!" interrupted Peter. "Why, this isn't cold at all. You ought to have been here when it really was cold—when the Smiling Pool and the Laughing Brook were covered with ice and the Green Meadows and the Green Forest were all white with snow, and poor Mrs. Grouse was a prisoner under the hard, icy crust. Then it was cold! Why, this isn't cold at all."

Winsome Bluebird ruffled up his feathers just a little. It was almost like a shiver. "This is cold enough for me!" said he. "Tell me about poor Mrs. Grouse, Peter. Did she get out?"

"You tell me about Ol' Mistah Buzzard first, and how he spends the winter, and then I'll tell you about poor Mrs. Grouse," replied Peter.

"All right," said Winsome. "There isn't a great deal to tell, but I'll do the best I can."

FIRST-AID TO AILING HOUSE

By ROGER B. WHITMAN

SQUEAKY STAIRS

THE treads and risers of a flight of stairs are supported in grooves cut into the side pieces. They are held in the grooves by slender wedges glued into place. With shrinkage, the wedges loosen, and there may be a squeak as they slide in the grooves when stepped on. In springing away from the riser, there is still more of a squeak when a weight on a tread forces it back into place.

When the under side of a staircase is open, as it may be when over a cellar stair, a squeak can be taken out by driving the wedges more tightly and securing them by nailing. Light finishing nails can be used, and they need not go all the way in.

When the under side is not exposed, a squeak can be taken out by preventing a tread from moving on top of its riser. The first step in this is to take off the strip of molding that is under the overhanging front edge. A wedge, such as the thin end of a shingle, is then driven in between the upper edge of a riser and the tread above. The tread will thus be prevented from moving. The wedge is cut off and the molding returned.

When a staircase is open on one side, it occasionally happens that the outside side-piece becomes warped and springs away from the treads and risers. It is sometimes possible to force the side piece back into place by wedging against an opposite wall. This, however, is a job that should be undertaken by a carpenter who is familiar with stair construction.

GRAPHIC GOLF

By BEST BALL

A PUTTING SUGGESTION.

THERE is much to be said for that method of putting which will insure, insofar as possible, the golfer keeping his attention on actually hitting the ball. Generally speaking there are so many things for the player to worry about on the green, such as the proper speed, the path to take, etc., that the attention is diverted along numerous channels and as a result the putt is not a decisive one.

Naturally these are problems that must be contended with but the player would be better off if he quit worrying and stroked the ball accurately and smoothly. It is wise to learn a putting technique that will cast aside these annoying angles. One of the best methods to follow is described here and, besides proving an excellent method of putting, it will also prove a remedy for putting ills when other styles are proving troublesome. The process is as simple as it is efficient. Merely select the line the ball is to follow, then align the clubface square to this line. As the actual stroke is made, think of nothing but striking the ball accurately along the line you have picked out. The method sounds easy and is, but requires considerable concentration. The important factor is to keep the mind focused on actually stroking the ball and not on problems the ball may have to contend with later.

Had We Not Dreamed

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HAD we not dreamed, we never would have known. The fortune that came to us was our own. Who leans on luck and who depends on chance. May meet it and may pass it with a glance. But we have dreamed, and they who dream create, And they shall know, however long they wait, This is their child, and, whether wealth or fame, May take possession and may give it name.

Had we not dreamed, how poor the world would be, Only the finished thing to ever see, Only the finished thing to ever know, Not plant the seed, and tend, and watch it grow. But we have dreamed, and they who dream are blessed With the whole pleasure of the thing possessed. Some buy their houses, but are never thrilled, Because, to love them, they must dream, then build.

Had we not dreamed, but little would be done. Naught is completed that is not begun. It must be visioned long before its time— Peaks seen from valleys, and men start to climb. But we have dreamed, and they who dream will do; Who has a dream will make the dream come true. For nothing is but something once has seemed, That never would have been, had we not dreamed.

Antelope Hat

Stamp blue is the color of this flattering antelope hat. The slightly draped crown is open in the center from front to back. The bird is of brilliant red antelope. A double sawtooth edging of self material and white pique trims the frock.

shown by the formation of the third finger, which in the type described indicates that its possessor holds high promise of worth-while accomplishment along creative lines.

The Inventive Finger of Brilliance. The predominant characteristics of this type are (1) squareness, (2) resilience under pressure, (3) pronounced inclination or tilt of the finger toward the fourth or little finger.

This type is sometimes found rather full in structure, but is never overfleshed. Its length is often marked and is usually even with that of the second finger or nearly so. The underside of the nail tip is often spatulate in shape, with padlike cushions of flesh which sometimes extend beyond the sides of the nail, which is quite square and firmly set. With the hand extended wide, the finger is found to lie in fairly close proximity to the second finger.

You may quite safely conclude that the owner of a third finger of this type is of a decidedly inventive turn of mind and indefatigable in working out original ideas in a practical manner.

Bay Meadows pavilion of two picturesque water fall displays surrounded by a beautiful landscape.

There will be two main entrances into the section under the grandstand, a north and south gateway, which will enable throngs to walk along the promenade of flowers and displays offering exits on either side of the pavilion whereby other features of the show may be easily reached.

The waterfall displays, one of them 20 feet in height, will empty into big pools, situated at both entrances.

To Increase 1937-38 Jr. College Budget

Representing an increase of $27,033 over last year expenditures, a 1937-38 budget of $376,240 was approved Friday evening of last week, by the Board of Trustees for the San Mateo Junior College district.

Of the increase, $19,000 is for boosts in teachers salaries and the rest for repairs, replacements and rising maintenance costs.

The board decided to seek bids on a college catalog to list courses and other information about the school.

PEDRO VALLEY ROCKAWAY BEACH

The warm weather of the past week brought a surge of summer visitors to the local beaches. Managers of all the resorts state they had as many guests as they could serve. Cars were parked thickly along the roads and highways, and the beaches were crowded with bathers and picnickers. Surveying and building went on busily over the week end, and those who have already finished their homes in Pedro and Rockaway worked in their gardens and enjoyed the superb view. Good fishing was reported.

The comedy sketch played by Rosemary Loney, Annabelle Troglia, and Frank Piltz, at the graduation event of the Rockaway School two weeks ago, is to have the compliment of being repeated at Jefferson Union High School in the autumn, according to Principal James Ferguson, who expressed warm commendation of the young actors in the play. This is a bright feather in the cap of the school and of its principal, Mrs. Wallace. The graduation program was of unusual quality, enjoyed by a large audience of parents and friends.

Mrs. Lawrence, who has been in a San Francisco hospital, following an operation, is spending a few weeks at her Pedro summer home, while recuperating.

Arthur Winther of San Francisco, spent part of an afternoon at Pedro Valley, noting with amazement all points of recent progress and commenting enthusiastically on what is being accomplished. Mr. Winther "knew Pedro when—"

Mrs. Jennie Bicknell drove into the city in the late afternoon, Monday of this week, on her way to some frivolity or another. She was in her usual gay and teasing mood, and questions by your scribe got nowhere. "She wouldn't say yes, and she wouldn't say no," like Charlotte Greenwood in the play.

Miss Harriet Stewart of Los Angeles is vacationing at the home of her sister, Becky Johnson. She observes many changes in Pedro Valley since she was here on previous visits.

Short Lengths: Mayor Jack Lawson and the William Beelers paid a short visit to Shelter Cove on Sunday. The Fred Bohrs and Leo Harris were weekenders here. They inspected the gorgeous new lights that Harris has installed at the Rees place. A familiar sight along the Pedro Terrace road is Casino Lacaro

Miss Violet Vornoli Weds J. Rovegno

One of the largest social affairs of the season was the shower, Thursday evening of this week, for Miss Violet Vornoli, who will wed James Rovegno, Tuesday of next week. The friends gathered at Idle-a-While Park for the event. Mrs. Rovai, mother of the bride elect, planned the shower.

The couple will motor to Reno, Tuesday of next week, where they will be married. Following a honeymoon trip, which will include Lake Tahoe, Mr. and Mrs. Rovegno will make their home at 37 Ramona street, San Francisco.

Rovegno, popular butcher at the Brighton Market, will be connected with a San Francisco shop after his return, July 15.

HEAR COMMITTEE REPORT MONDAY AT GROUP MEET

Report Work On Geneva Ave. Will Begin, First Of July

According to a report made by the financial secretary.

CHOOSE SITE

Mrs. J. F. Calverly, head of the committee on education and recreation, reported that a site for the McLaren Park playground had been selected by joint committees. It lies north of McLaren boulevard, between the home of the caretaker and a grove of trees. It is sheltered and readily accessible.

Head of the health and sanitation committee reported that the condition of vacant lots in the valley is undesirable and that 300 families are without garbage cans.

The chairman of the streets and sidewalks committee reported that the majority of recent complaints had been adjusted. Repairs at the top of Raymond avenue are still pending but a definite arrangement in regard to the long needed widening of Geneva avenue has been made. The last legal obstacle has been removed and it is reported that work will begin on the project, early in July.

President George Allen authorized a letter asking for a sidewalk for the McLaren Park boulevard.

A committee was organized and instructed to investigate the safety of local bathing beaches.

CENTRAL COUNCIL

Fred Dettmeyer, Charles Eisenhut and J. F. Calverly were appointed entertainment, general and refreshment chairmen, respectively for the July 26 meeting, when members and officers of the Central Council of Civic Clubs will visit the valley group.

At the close of the meeting members reviewed the scrap book of the Visitation Valley community fiesta, prepared by Mrs. Viola Happy, historian.

BAYSHORE NEWS

Al Taylor suffered serious burns about the arms and chest, Sunday of last week, while burning grass for the fire department. Taylor was caught by a back fire as he was crossing through a lot. He was immediately put under the care of a doctor, who reported shock and first and second degree burns on the arms.

Mr. Ham formerly of the water company in Bayshore has moved to Friendly Acres. Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Pierce will move into the Ham house on Accacia street.

Miss Betty Holt was operated on for an acute case of appendicitis Sunday of this week.

Residents of the Schwerin Addition will be happy to know that beginning next month they will receive 115 more cubic feet of water for the $2 minimum charge. This is a trial tentative rate to be used until the system is put on a working basis. Letters will be sent to all consumers next week informing them of rates.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilcox of Oriente street have moved to San Francisco. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Filarski will re-

Bayshore Post Has Two New Members

George Heywood and William J. Jonas became members of the Bayshore Post No. 473, American Legion, at initiation ceremonies held Thursday evening of last week.

Margaret Deuhurst, chaplain and historian for the legionnaires, extends, on behalf of the entire organization, a cordial invitation to any comrades of other posts to visit the Bayshore unit.

Mrs. H. R. Brown suffered two broken bones in her leg when she slipped and fell from a chair, Saturday evening of last week. She was rushed to Beresford Hospital by neighbors.

Bayshore Clubs and organizations have been invited by the Brisbane Fire Department to the Fourth of July celebration to be held Sunday and Monday of next week. All residents are urged to visit Brisbane and participate in the festivities.

Bayshore Firemen did a good job of burning dry grass on vacant lots last week. Chief Parker has changed the old rule of burning on Sundays only and the boys under his direction have accomplished almost all the work in a week.

Arley King is visiting relatives in Portland Ore.

The damage case of Mrs. Thomas against the City of Bayshore was scheduled to come up before Judge McNutt in Redwood City last week. Witnesses and attorneys for both sides as well as many interested citizens and city officials were present to hear the case. However, due to a crowded calendar, the case was postponed until the month of August.

VACATION CAMPS PLANNED BY WPA FOR THE SUMMER

Underprivileged Children To Get Vacation In Five Summer Camps

proved beyond the most extravagant expectancy, plans are under way for five camps and preparations are being made for a total of 4,000 campers during the different sessions.

STAFF AND EQUIPMENT

Most of the 800 attendants at last year's camps were sent by funds donated to the local sponsoring agent. The Works Progress Administration furnished staff and camp equipment. It was required that the child pay, or have paid, subsistence food expenses, averaging approximately $5 per week.

The same program, only on a larger scale, is being carried out this year.

Each child is examined for physical fitness before application can be accepted, and at camp a registered nurse is on duty at all times. Food served is plain and wholesome.

Recreation leaders are assigned for their proved ability and are responsible for arranging daily programs of hiking, swimming, games, handicraft and nature study, in accordance with the interests of the campers, but with insistence on plenty of rest.

DAILY ROUTINE

7:00—Reveille, flag raising ceremony, and warming up exercises.

7:30—Breakfast, followed by health inspection.

8:30-12—Hikes, games, swimming and handicraft as arranged by camp leaders.

12:00—Lunch.

1:00-3:00—Rest period; free play, practice for evening campfire program.

3:00-4:30—Swimming, crafts, walks, etc.

5:30—Dinner, followed by free play period.

7:00—Campfire program.

8:30—Taps! Lights out.

Applications and full information will be available at the nearest Works Progress Administration district recreation office.

the exquisite statuettes found in Chinese graves seems to have been like that of ancient Egypt. MAY LOSE HAND

When his car went out of control and upset at Brisbane, Saturday of last week, Ed Fitzgerald, 54, San Francisco, incurred a badly lacerated hand, attendants at South San Francisco Hospital reported.

Details of the accident were not known. Fitzgerald was alone in the car and is believed to have lost control while driving intoxicated. He was referred to his family physician in Oakland by hospital authorities who said his hand may have to be amputated.

Progressively the Statuettes become more and more animated, until complete expression and grace is achieved in those of the great period, 600 to 900 A. D. Horses, camels, dancing girls, warriors—everything which might be deemed pleasing to the spirit of the dead person were depicted. The character of all is quite the reverse of gloomy. It is lively, even humorous, and though later centuries marked a decline in this quality, the sense of plasticity was not lost.

SYNOPSIS

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane. Unwillingly she overhears Jed talking to Mark Trent, a nephew of Mrs. Dane who has been disinherited. Mrs. Dane had lived at Lookout House, a huge structure on the sea, built by her father and divided into two, for her and Mark's father. Brooke had been a fashion expert, and Mrs. Dane, a "shut-in" hearing her on the radio, had invited her to call and developed a deep affection for her. Mark discloses that Mrs. Dane had threatened to disinherit him if he married Lola, from whom he is now divorced. He says he does not trust Henri and Clotilde Jacques, Mrs. Dane's servants. He says he is not interested in an offer of Brooke's to share the estate with him. Leaving her department store job, Brooke refuses an offer to "go stepping" with Jerry Field, a carefree young man who wants to marry her. At a family conference she learns she must live at Lookout House alone, since Lucette, her younger sister who is taking her job, her brother, Sam, a young playwright, and her mother plan to stay in the city.

CHAPTER III

Through the open transom above the office door came the hum of typewriters. Mark Trent, behind his desk, scowled in the direction of the sound. He had paid good money for those machines on the understanding that they were noiseless. Curious that he never had been annoyed by them before. Must be this confounded note in his hands. He read again:

Dear Mr. Trent—
Many times your aunt has told me of the Thanksgivings you spent with her at Lookout House. Won't you dine here on the coming holiday? My mother, sister and brother will be with me. There are many family treasures which you should have. I would like to go over them with you, and more than all, I want to thank you for pulling me out from under that car. I really wasn't so ungrateful as I sounded. This is a late invitation because I have been bolstering up my courage to ask you. Please come. Bury the hatchet, or accept the olive branch, or however peace between enemies—though I am not for a moment your enemy—is being accomplished now.

Sincerely yours,
Brooke Reyburn

Lookout House

He dropped the note and frowned at the red carnations in a crystal vase on his desk. He lived over the instant he had seen a girl go down in the street, had seen a speeding car almost upon her. How had he managed to save her? Colorless and dazed as she was, he had thought her the loveliest thing he ever had seen as she looked up at him. As for a second he had steadied her in his arms, his brain had fought against her attraction and the live warmth of her body had prompted him to growl at her. No wonder she had been angry, and no wonder — he admitted honestly — Mary Amanda Dane had been taken in by her. Well, one victim in the family was enough. She shouldn't hypnotize him.

He drew letter paper toward him and picked up a pen. He'd settle this question of friendship between them for good and all. Little schemer!

Dear Miss Reyburn, he wrote. As he hesitated as to how to word his regrets, another picture of the girl as she had appeared between the hangings in Stewart's office flashed in his mind with startling clarity.

He must get along with that note. His frowning regard of the opening door changed to a welcoming smile as a head poked in.

"Come in, Jed. What's on the little mind now?"

Jed Stewart perched on a corner of the flat desk. He pulled one of the red carnations from the vase and drew the stem through the buttonhole of the lapel of his checked coat.

"I'm taking a lady to tea, need a posy to make me look like a million, so combined utility with business and came here. Knew you always had them."

"What's the business? If you've been sent again to ask me to take half of that—"

"Hold everything, that's all washed up. The matter has not been mentioned to me since the day you and Brooke Reyburn met in my office. I guess you killed her interest in you by your infernal sarcasm."

"Hope you'll enjoy the house and fortune, Miss Reyburn. Happy landings! Perhaps I'd better say, safe landings," sez you."

"Oh, you think so? Read that." Jed Stewart frowned over the note Mark Trent tossed to him. He read it through, reread it. Looked at his friend.

"Going?"

"Going! What do you think?" Mark answered a buzzer. "Who? Mrs. Gregory. Of course I'll see her."

He explained hurriedly to Stewart. "It's an old friend of Aunt Mary Amanda's. She sailed for France a week before my aunt died. She's a martinet, one of those terrible women who don't care where the lash of their tongue falls, and a confirmed matchmaker."

"This is mighty good of you, Mrs. Gregory, and it's a clear case of thought transference; not ten minutes ago I was thinking of you."

A wave of feeling menaced the clarity of Mark's voice as he bent over the white-gloved hand of the woman who had entered the office. She had been a vital part of the life at Lookout House which now seemed so irretrievably far behind him. A smile tugged at his lips as he observed that the floppy wide-brimmed picture hat was the model she had worn since as a boy he had admired the deeply waved blonde hair it shadowed. The hair was still faultlessly marcelled, but it was snow white.

She settled into a chair with the same rustle of taffeta he remembered, and adjusted a diamond brooch of a size and brilliance to make a discriminating thief avidly flex supple fingers. She peered up at him through a jeweled lorgnette, with eyes once a brilliant blue, now the color of faded larkspur.

"Handsome as ever, aren't you, Mark, in spite of the way those two women let you down. First that wife, with a grande amoureuse complex, and then Mary Amanda. I don't wonder that your hair at the temples looks as if it had been touched by frosty fingers, if you are only thirty. Who's he?"

She waved her lorgnette toward Stewart, who, back to the room, apparently had been absorbed in a study of the calf-bound books on the shelf.

"Stewart, of the firm of Stewart and Stewart, attorneys. Jed, come here. I want to present you to Mrs. Gregory, my first love."

"Hmp! Flatterer! You always could coax my heart out of my breast with your wonderful smile and your voice, Mark." She peered through her lorgnette as Jed Stewart took the hand she extended with the air of a sovereign.

"Stewart and Stewart! You were Mary Amanda Dane's lawyer, weren't you?"

The contempt in her voice deepened the color of Jed Stewart's already sufficiently ruddy face.

"I had that honor."

"Honor! Do you call it an honor to help cheat her nephew out of his inheritance?"

"Really, Mrs. Gregory, Jed can't be held responsible—"

"Hold your tongue, Mark. I've started, and now I intend to get rid of a few things that have been boiling and sizzling inside me since the day I heard that Mary Amanda had cut you out in favor of that fashion adviser she'd gone crazy about."

"Forget it, Mrs. Gregory. I don't need the money—"

"Of course you need it. No one has money enough now because no one has a sense of financial security. Didn't you take over all the lame ducks as your share of your grandfather's property so that your aunt wouldn't be worried by them?"

Aren't you making that ex-wife of yours an allowance? Mary Amanda told me. What's she been doing since she left you for that French count? It was a French count year, wasn't it? They were buzzing round rich girls thick as wasps about a broiled live lobster."

"She has married, I understand."

"Married! After she divorced the count! The third time! Getting to be a habit, isn't it? She isn't entitled to a penny. I don't wonder your aunt was furious when she found out that you were giving her money. Perhaps that's the real reason she cut you off, though I thought it was because she didn't believe in divorce; on that subject she was stuck back in the eighties. However, that wasn't what I came here to talk about. I just wanted to tell you that if I had known what was in that will I witnessed two days before I sailed for Europe—it was just a week before she died—now, Stewart, don't look at me with your jaw dropped as if I were a moron with a Medusa complex—of course, I know that a person isn't supposed to know the contents of the will she witnesses, but I still say that had I known that your aunt was leaving her money away from you, Mark, I would have cut off my hand before I signed."

Mark Trent's heart stopped and galloped furiously on. A will witnessed a week before Mary Amanda's death! The will which had been probated was of a date two months prior. As he opened suddenly stiffened lips to reply, he met Jed Stewart's warning eyes, eyes which seemed like flames in a chalky face. Jed was as amazed as he.

Jed began to speak. "I was fond of my client Mrs. Dane, and your reference to her last will brought back a picture of the delicate woman in her wheel chair with—"

"With that disreputable parrot swearing in the cage behind her. The bird was there when I witnessed the will; I didn't know but that she would insist upon Micawber's being the other witness, but she called in Clotilde and Henri Jacques, it was her nurse-companion's day off. If I had to choose between the parrot and that French butler as my co-resident on a desert island, I'd take Mr. Micawber. After they went out, Mary Amanda and I were alone for a few moments in the firelight. It was the last time I saw her—"

Mrs. Gregory dabbed her reddening eyes with a lace-edged handkerchief. She straightened, demanded angrily:

"Why am I slobbering like that? I love life! I wouldn't give up my place in this problem-logged world for all the starchy halos and golden harps you could offer. Thinking of your aunt set me off. The last few times I saw her I had noticed that she seemed distraught, as if something were worrying her. I've wondered since if she would have told me what she had done if I had not had to hurry away. I called Henri before I left. As I looked back, she seemed white and exhausted. As I drove away I saw that girl driving in."

"That girl! You mean—"

"The Reyburn girl, of course, Stewart. You ought to get a position somewhere as an echo. I'd met her several times and I liked her too before I knew what she had done to Mark. She made me forget that I was old enough to be her grandmother. Charming manners. Well, I must run along."

"Thank you for your interest in me, Mrs. Gregory. I'm going down to your car with you. Wait for me, Jed."

The woman turned on the threshold. "I hope, if ever you draw another will cutting out a rightful heir, young man, you'll be swished in boiling oil."

Stewart grinned. "Not boiling oil, madam, not boiling; couldn't you reduce the temperature a degree?"

She smiled. "Well see, we'll see. You're an engaging boy, if you are a poor lawyer. I'm to spend the winter in my country house—not far from the Dane-Trent property—everybody's doing it this year. Motor down some Sunday for lunch."

"Sure, I'll come. Meanwhile, would you mind not telling anyone that you witnessed Mrs. Dane's will?"

"You don't think I'm proud of my part in that robbery, do you? I wouldn't have mentioned it now, but I wanted to square myself with Mark."

Mark Trent's mind was in a tumult as he chatted with her in the corridor, inquired for her health on the way down in the elevator, told her that he thought of her rich fruit cake whenever he attended a wedding. She looked up at him sharply as they waited at the curb.

"Then you still attend weddings?"

"Why not? I rather like them."

"After your experience, I should think you would shun them. Ever see Lola?"

"No."

"Here's my car. That's Dominique at the wheel. Remember him, don't you? He drove my horses before I had an automobile, and the only thing I have against him is that he recommended his friends the Jacques to your aunt. She made so much of Henri that he got dictator-minded and tried to run the whole place."

Jed Stewart was walking the floor when he entered his office. He stopped abruptly.

"Well," he demanded, "did she talk any more?"

"Not about the will. Why the dickens didn't you ask questions?"

"Didn't dare. Don't you see, Mark? Boy, don't you understand? Someone has snatched that second will she witnessed."

"Did you draw it?"

"Never heard of it. Perhaps your aunt had an acute attack of remorse. I argued with her, as much as a lawyer can argue, against cutting you out; she wouldn't come to me about a new will. Didn't Mrs. Gregory say that she had been distraught the last few times they had been together? She thinks it was because Mrs. Dane was making up her mind to disinherit you; you and I know that the will to that effect already had been drawn."

"You passed up a grand chance to cross-examine her, Jed."

"Didn't dare. She thinks the will she witnessed is the one probated; doesn't know that if it had been she would have been summoned to prove her signature. We mustn't let a suspicion of this second will get out. Where is it?"

"She said the Reyburn girl drove in as she left the place. Do you suppose Aunt Mary Amanda told her what was in it and that she—"

Jed Stewart stopped his restless pacing. His eyes and voice were troubled.

Chico.—A judgment of $2,000 was awarded three Chico residents in their suit against the Pacific Gas and Electric Company for the loss of four black walnut trees. They claimed escaping gas killed the trees.

Excavators Find Rare Vintage

Susanville.—Excavators, digging a cellar under the Hardin Barry house, unearthed a cache of champagne that had been buried there for more than forty years. A check by Barry revealed the champagne had been imported from France in 1881.

Buried Under Orange Pulp, Lives

Ontario.—Buried for fifteen minutes under several tons of orange pulp in a cannery here, David Adams was found to have no serious injury when fellow workers cut a hole through the sheet iron with a blow torch and extricated him.

Bears Shun Birth Control

Sequoia National Park.—Birth control apparently isn't being practiced by Sequoia National Park bears, two sets of triplets and three sets of twins having been seen at the feeding grounds on Bear Hill. The cubs were not permitted to leave the trees, their mothers sternly forbidding descent to eat with other bears.

Prison Term for Millionaire

Los Angeles.—Pleading guilty to two counts of conspiracy to evade income taxes and three counts of evasion, Edward M. Smith, millionaire president of the nationally known Emsco corporations was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment and fined $25,000. Federal Judge Yankwich granted Smith a 30-day stay of execution to allow him time to straighten out his business affairs.

Blame Sunburn in Harlow Death

Los Angeles.—A severe sunburn incurred by the late Jean Harlow a year ago was an important factor in her death, according to a speaker at the University of Southern California's institute of government. The reference came when Henry M. Busch, head of the division of social sciences at Cleveland College, was discussing the folly of too ardent exercise and exposure to the sun on the part of health-seeking adults.

Two Die in Mine Collapse

Napa.—Trapped by a cave-in of tons of shale, two men were crushed to death in an asbestos mine in the Capell valley 20 miles east of here. A rescue crew of ranchers pressed into service by the mine's superintendent, V. E. Parrish, extricated the bodies after digging through debris for hours. A few minutes before the accident the property had been examined by a State safety inspector, who found the timbers in good condition. It was believed the cave-in was due to rock formations.

Crude Surgery Saves Life

Santa Barbara.—A fishline and a net mending needle, used to sew up a gaping thigh wound, probably saved the life of Robert L. Brooks, recovering in a hospital here. Brooks, who is lessee of lonely San Miguel Island, slipped while repairing a wharf and a spike ripped a large wound in his thigh. Realizing that Brooks would bleed to death unless the wound were closed, Herbert Lever, only other man on the island, performed the crude operation without anesthetic. Then the injured man waited twelve days until a boat arrived and rushed him to a hospital.

Jumbo Mine Owner Visits City

Santa Barbara.—George Austin, once-obscure owner of a general store in the desert town of Jungo, Nev., who in the past year has skyrocketed to the multimillionaire class as owner of the famous Jumbo mine, arrived here with his wife to "rest and take it easy for a while." Two years ago he had trouble raising $500 for down payment on a five-foot hole in the ground, in which he was convinced there was rich gold ore. Three weeks ago Texas capitalists purchased the "hole in the ground" from him after it had developed into one of the richest gold strikes in history. The purchase price was $10,000,000, to be paid over twenty-five years.

Water Purifier Kills Trout

Santa Barbara.—Copper sulphate placed in the stream by the Santa Barbara Water Department to purify the city's water supply by destroying algae and other impurities has temporarily ruined fishing in the Mono River from the silt dam to the upper end of Gibraltar Lake. This report was made by R. E. Bedwell, deputy State fish and game warden, who said copper sulphate, properly known as bluestone, has killed all trout, although other fish survived.

Cool, Smart, Comfortable

COOL is the word for Carrie when she wears one of these smart new frocks by Sew-Your-Own. No matter whether she's three or thirty, a June bride or a proud mama, Carrie will find what she needs for summer comfort here.

The young frock with the interesting middle and sporty inverted pleat is one that's going in for extra credit at summer school. It has that advanced chic which readily distinguishes co-eds' clothes. If you're campus bound (or just bound for an ordinary vacation) be sure to have a couple of versions of this fashion first with you. Then you'll be set for that heavy summer schedule.

Lines for a Princess.

Second to none in the summer is this princess dress. As fit for golf as it is for dancing, you can see at a glance that this is the one dress you can't be even half-way happy without. Fresh in spirit, dainty in detail and becoming to all figures this simple-to-sew frock will introduce countless women to new chic this season. Come on, Milady, shake hands with Chic.

Tot's Tidbit.

Only when we're very young are we privileged to wear dresses as cute as this one. The most unaccustomed seamstress can make it with its half dozen pieces; the merest remnant will suffice for material. There is more than ordinary intrigue packed in the diminutive skirt that shows a couple of darling dimpled knees so lusciously sun tanned. Use it as a cool, cool top with panties as the ideal hot weather attire, or slip it on as an apron—either way it will be a fine little companion for mother's pet this summer.

The Patterns.

Pattern 1258 is designed in sizes 12 to 20 (30 to 38 bust). Size 14 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material plus 4½ yards for braiding trimming as pictured.

Pattern 1323 is designed in sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 46 bust). Size 16 requires 5½ yards of 39 inch material for the short length. Beach length requires 7¼ yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1944 is designed for sizes 6 months, 1, 2, and 3 years. Size 1 year requires 1½ yards of 36 inch material. The pockets, cuffs and facings for collar in contrasting material require ¼ yard of 27 inch material.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., 149 New Montgomery Ave., San Francisco, Calif. Patterns 15 cents (in coins) each.

Need of Self-Control

Health and happiness are generally looked on as enviable gifts, whereas the fact is that, to a large extent, they are duties; only we prefer not to recognize this, as it involves such an unpleasant amount of self-control, mental and bodily.—L. H. M. Soulsby.

CREATE TRAFFIC SCHOOL TO STOP HIW'Y ACCIDENTS

Other California Cities Have Tried School Plan

the violators school in San Jose, Wednesday of this week.

"Traffic safety is primarily a matter of education," said the commission secretary. "Schools for violators have proven one of the principal factors in reducing traffic offenses and the accident death toll."

SEEK APPROPRIATION

The matter of a paid secretary and permanent office for the commission, which would be set up as a clearing house of information for the traffic courts and law enforcement officials, was discussed this week. It was decided to ask the Board of Supervisors for an appropriation in the next budget.

"Oakland appropriates an annual fund of $5000 for its safety commission," said the secretary. "The safety movement here should be treated as an important function of county government."

Plans were completed for the public meeting July 12 to which all police officials and judges have been summoned. The meeting will be addressed by Police Chief Howard Zink of Palo Alto, where a "model" safety system has long been in vogue.
